Description: The Samar College Donation Drive was organized to support students who were severely affected by the devastating floods caused by Typhoon "Uwan." The flood left many students without proper clothing, school supplies, and basic necessities. This initiative aimed to alleviate the struggles of the students and help them recover from the disaster's impact, ensuring they could return to their studies without further obstacles. The donation drive was a collaborative effort involving SSC Officers, students, faculty, and teachers, and it took place over several weeks, with collection points set up across the campus. The campaign sought essential items such as clothes, school supplies, and non-perishable food items.

Objective: The primary objective of the donation drive was to provide immediate relief to Samar College students affected by the flood. The specific goals were:

1. To collect essential items such as school uniforms, clothes, and school supplies for students in need.
2. To raise awareness about the challenges faced by flood-affected students and encourage participation from the Samar College community and the public.
3. To support the recovery process of affected students, enabling them to continue their education with the necessary resources.
4. To foster a sense of community solidarity by involving students, faculty, and local partners in a collective effort to support those in need.

Activities: Samar College set up donation collection points around the campus and launched an awareness campaign to encourage contributions. Students, faculty, and partners helped gather clothes, school uniforms, school supplies, and other essentials. Volunteers then sorted and organized the donated items before coordinating with the City Government to distribute them to the flood-affected students. Regular updates were shared, and donors were thanked for their support.
